

Shrektastic

This challenge brings everything together that we've been doing over the previous sessions. You'll need to create a page giving details of the three Shrek characters. To do this you'll need to remember:

- how the various HTML elements go together (headings!, lists! images! tables!)
- how CSS allows you to make your web page look great
- how you should organise your files so that your web page 'sees' your CSS and image files

Your challenge!

1. Create a new web page with a title of 'My Shrek Characters by' followed by your own Shrek identity (we'll explain!)
2. Create a web page similar to the one shown on the next page. See if you can style it using a CSS file.

Feeling brave?

Create two or three style sheets with different effects (plain, fancy, colourful, or similar) and take turns linking the different stylesheets to the page.

The picture on the next page shows the effect of changing ONLY a stylesheet. In other words, creating a new stylesheet (let's call it `styles-fancy.css`) and then changing this...

<link type="text/css" rel="stylesheet" href="styles.css"/>

to this

<link type="text/css" rel="stylesheet" href="styles-fancy.css"/>

Shrek

Shrek lives in an Ogre Swamp, which is green and murky, like any other swamp contains small and big ponds of muddy water and it also has geysers that squirt out mud.

Lord Farquaad

Shrektastic! by blindmouseone

Shrek a large, green, physically intimidating ogre, with an accent described by Mike Myers as "a Scottish guy who's lived in Scarborough for 40 years". Even though his background is something of a mystery, in the musical, it is revealed that on his seventh birthday Shrek was sent away by his parents because it was an ogre tradition (like in the book where his parent send him away). He is seen traveling alone, either being screamed at or teased by passers-by. The only time he receives a pleasant greeting is a wave from a young Fiona, who is promptly led away by her parents. After scaring away an angry mob, he arrives at his swamp, enters an outhouse and literally breaks out as the adult Shrek. Though surly, misanthropic, and venomously cranky, Shrek is peaceful and doesn't care to hurt anyone, but he just wants to live his life in solitude and be left alone. Shrek is befriended by Donkey, an excitable, hyperactive, and talking donkey.
